Tip of the month – New Year's Resolution

How about a New Year's resolution that is good for the earth? Try our tip of the month and make a difference. Really try to stick to this one the whole year...

One of the impressive things about health food is that it is almost always more environmentally friendly. By its nature it is less processed, has less packaging and tends to be locally grown. If, like me, you're a bit of a sucker for the vending machine down the hall, get into the habit of keeping a little box of trail-mix-type snack food on your desk. The object is to avoid getting to the desperation point where a mid-afternoon chocolate bar feels like the difference between life and death. You may land up eating a little more during the day but what you eat will be far better for you and the environment.
